

WHY BUILDINGS DON'T FALL DOWN:
Elementary Structural Concepts and Basic Building Forms

This illustrated lecture, geared to a lay audience, and usually delivered at the beginning of a series of architectural lectures, is an introduction to the basic forces which act on buildings, and the structural systems which have been developed over the millennia to resist them, giving neophytes an understanding of the necessities of structure, and how it influences building form.